

MICRO NEWS UPDATE – December, 2020

Wanting to get out in the fresh air and make a difference to your precinct?

Volunteering opportunities are now available again at Albert Park. Parks Victoria have a focus on the southern end of the park (adjacent to Fitzroy Street); park entrances and Lakeside drive, partnering with volunteers and corporates.

To become a volunteer, simply register your interest with Park Connect at <https://www.parkconnect.vic.gov.au> and create your volunteer profile.

There are many diverse volunteer activities to get involved in. You can look for activity types that interest you.

Friends of Red Gum Triangle is one of the groups actively looking for volunteers in Albert Park. The Red Gum Triangle (to the north of the cricket oval - see map below) is managed as native bushland as it provides a snapshot of the indigenous vegetation of the area.

Red Gum Triangle boasts stands of Red Gums and other native trees, with a characteristic native under storey supporting natural ecosystems, providing a picturesque, shaded pocket of local, indigenous vegetation and is accessed by a low key pedestrian path. Main volunteer activities are weeding and rubbish removal. Stout boots and gloves are recommended.
